dots

Home and away win probability. A tie shows as a sliver in the NFL and is impossible in college.

Projected points, home–away.

Projected combined points.

Projected margin, quoted on the favourite.

Chance the final margin lands exactly on 3 or on 7, either way. Read as a floor — see the note below.

Point differential per game, the distance between the two sides.

Last five results, most recent first, with points for and against across them.

How much rests on these teams' own results: three dots = 4+ games each, none = league baseline.

The quarterback is not in this model

In football the starting quarterback moves a line further than any other single factor — several points on the spread — and the feed carries no depth chart or injury data. A game where a starter is out is under-modelled here.

Weather is absent too, and it matters more in this sport than in any other in this repo. So are rest and travel, including the short week a Thursday game imposes.

Key numbers are a floor, not a figure

Football margins pile up on 3 and 7 because scores are built from field goals and touchdowns. The percentages here come from discretising a smooth normal curve, which spreads that mass evenly and so understates the real clustering.

The ordering is right and the numbers are conservative. Treat a projected margin sitting on 3 or 7 as more dangerous than the figure suggests, not less.
